What is climate? → Wherever you are on earth, at whatever time of the year, your surroundings are constantly changing.

Whether you are in Chicago, USA, or in Sydney, Australia, sometimes it might be rainy and cloudy, and other times it may be sunny and warm.

Usually, this weather fits into a pattern—it is not completely random.

You expect it to be snowy in Chicago in December, because it has been snowy in Chicago for as many Decembers as you can remember. And you can predict it will be very warm in Sydney next summer, because that is a pattern we have seen for a long time.

DECEMBER

That is what climate is.
